The IRIS GARDEN

1940

MERRIAM
KANSAS

The frost-green fans spread upward from the earth
And proudly guard their swelling buds until
The laughing voice of Spring breaks on the hill,
And pregnant gardens blossom with rebirth.
Among the many irises that blow,
Their velvet banners held up to the sun,
Enchantedly I see my lady go
Exclaiming as she calls them one by one:
"Marquita, Morning Splendor, Desert Gold,
Sensation, Junaluska, Summer Cloud—"
Herself a lovely flower in that crowd
Of irises her eager arms enfold.
And from the garden wall the children shout
The season's magic words: "The flags are out!"

—By MAX GOODLEY.

Unusual Weather

Like California, Kansas has habitually unusual weather. A usual feature of this unusual weather is the late freeze. This year it was later and more severe than usual, bringing many anomalies. The phlox subulata that was to have bloomed with the daffodils is blooming with the lilacs—and the colors are wrong. The lilacs themselves squeaked narrowly into a glorious bloom. The Persians were too well developed and have been put out of the picture but the French hybrids have never been so lovely. Dependable intermediate iris, such as Zwabenberg, are blooming sparsely while the tenderer tall bearded—for instance Purissima or Souv. de Loetitia Michaud—are heavy with buds. The freeze was followed by several weeks of cool, rainy weather which has made the iris foliage rampant and makes certain stems taller than we have seen for many years.

Stems

I rejoice in the prospect of so much bloom but the tall stems are not so welcome. We have too much wind here in Kansas. In spite of my many careful windbreaks I can foresee that many proud show stalks will bury their heads in the mud unless I am forehanded with the stakes. For our gardens Gudrun is a safer bet than Easter Morn; Baldwin more dependable than Sierra Blue.

Pogos

The short stem pogocyclus hybrids promise to be of special interest to us here if only we can obtain hardy varieties. This year I am growing a collection of them which Mr. Clarence White generously sent to test for hardiness. They are all growing well and some of them will bloom. This is an interesting, an unusual group, and one which offers new fields for adventurous hybridizers.

Greetings and Welcome

Besides the White hybrids I shall have a great number of new varieties of tall bearded iris to bloom for the first time this year. I am eager to see them and hope that many of you can see them, too. In spite of the later season the main bloom will occur, I believe, between May 20th and 25th. So au revoir until then.

How to Grow Irises

★ FERTILIZERS

Superphosphate and wood ashes are the best inorganic fertilizers for irises. If the soil lacks humus, well rotted manure, peat moss or tobacco stems are helpful.

★ LEAF SPOT

Very little is known about leaf spot except that, while it is unsightly, it does little or no injury to the plants. Removing and burning all old foliage helps control it.

★ ROOT ROT

Cut out the soft tissue and dust with coppercarbonate.

★ BORER

A dust spray of one part Dutox and four parts cheap flour applied spring and fall, and frequent transplantings will eliminate borer and prevent reinfection from your neighbor.

- WILLIAM MOHR (M-M) Gigantic flowered lilac deeply veined purple; a pogocyclus hybrid, the rhizomes are small; the better for winter protection but can get along without it; early; short----- .25
- WINNISHIEK (Egel) Very dark and very purple with a pearly edge to the ruffled falls; midseason; tall----- .25

"I was so sorry to have missed seeing your garden this year but have heard it was more beautiful than ever. I will try not to miss it next year."

Mrs. J. A. S., Joplin, Mo.

"I got my iris order O. K.; they are very nice plants; and want to thank you for the extra ones you enclosed."

Mrs. M. K., Pueblo, Colo.

How to Grow Irises

These notes are the fruit of trials and errors in the middle west. If your climate and soil differ from mine, you should adjust my suggestions to your conditions.

★ SOIL AND SITUATION

A neutral or natural limestone soil is best but a slightly acid soil may be treated with ground limestone. Never use lime unless your soil is definitely acid, as lime does more harm than good in neutral soil. Sun or part shade are recommended, with part shade being the choice location in regions in which the sun is very hot during the blooming time.

★ PLANTING

Plant with the rhizome well covered with earth; about a half inch pressed down firmly is best. Water well but infrequently if the weather is hot and dry. (I never water new plantings because I haven't the water.) After the roots are well down, keep the hoe shiney and the surface of the soil dusty.

ZWANENBERG (Den) Like something brought in from the woods or a rare orchid; greenish slate standards and pale greenish maroon brown falls; very early; short.....	3 for .25
